Basic Rules - Teen Patti for Beginners

52 cards are used in the teen Patti play, no jokers. In this game, the rules are typically straightforward but intricate. The objective of this card game, like any other, is to gain the upper hand. Therefore, knowing the tactic that helps you rack up wins is helpful. Although it may appear unattainable for novices to defeat the pros, you can get there by understanding the laws and skillfully performing your play. The following basic, easy-to-understand rules apply to the game:

Objective

To win the pot, which includes the wagers made by participants, one must have a better three-card hand than the others.

Game Setup

Three cards are dealt face down to each player. It starts with a set boot amount in the pot, often the smallest bet each player makes.

Teen Patti Gameplay - Teen Patti for Beginners

Any person can play the game whether they are seen or blind. While the latter includes looking at the cards before making any betting decisions, playing blind entails placing bets without doing so, which is reasonable. ### Betting

The betting process will proceed clockwise from the player directly to the dealer's immediate left. The players have two options: calling, which matches the existing stake, and raising, which raises the stakes.

Show

The round will continue until just one player remains or all other players fold. Alternatively, if none of the players fold, they may request a show, in which case the cards are compared.

Hand Rankings - Teen Patti for Beginners

In Teen Patti, understanding the hand rankings is crucial. Three of a kind, with three aces being the most valuable and three a pair being the lowest, make up the Trail, which consists of three cards of the same rank. When three cards are in a pure sequence, they are all of the same suits and are arranged in sequential order; for instance, the highest card is A-K-Q, and the lowest is 4-3-2.

The three cards in sequence are not all of the same suit; rather, they are dealt in a different order. Three cards of the same suit that don't run sequentially are indicated by colour. A pair of two cards of the same rank is known as a "Two of a Kind" or pair. If anyone holds none of the specified cards, the highest card wins.
